Kel Yuri denied today that U. S. Marine Cpl. James Pav- lokos of Chicago was starved at the Omuta prison camp where "Yuri was commandant, and said the American's death came as a "horrible shock." "I was confident I had the best prisoner of war camp in Japan," the lieutenant testified at his war- crimes trial. "Each month I drew tangerines and eve flowers as presents for the men." Yuri is charged with responsi- bility for the deaths of two U. S. prisoners, mistreatment of others and failure to provide adequate facilities.	Of senta seats unde Harb near with zatio majo camp war.
